

Dear students of 10a,

here we go again and struggle in home schooling times now.

I hope everybody of you had nice holiday times and is still healthy and motivated.

I wish you a happy New Year with a strong health!

Let's turn into the working mode now. Last lesson we talked about literature and narrative perspectives. I hope you could work out the right narrator for your chosen texts. (There were your of them, two were mandatory)

This lesson, please read the other 2 texts and find out which perspective the narrator takes.

Give evidence for all your answers. (Best way: written)

For the next lesson on Friday I'll send an example of a short story. Please, work all the answers to my questions out. Do it properly to know if there are still problems. Next week you MAY send me questions if there were problems with the stories. There will be one more literary work before I am going to test it. Take your chances!!

That's it for today. Good "luck " and best wishes for your success, yours Mrs Leschniewski.
