Gwen laughs.

Morgan doesn't find it funny. He says that Gareth and Gwen behave like little kids.

The guide smiles and asks Gareth if he likes the mask. Then she explains what it is.

Nr. 3, p. 52

what they say about Jamaica: in the west Indies (die Westlichen Inseln); he was born there where his ancestors came from: Africa

why he has travelled to western Africa: to find more about the music of his ancestors.

What he says about the drums: The Udu is played by Nigerian women of the Igbo people at celebrations. The women sit when they play the Udu. The djembe / African Drum can make three different sounds (Pe, Pa, Pu). You can make many different rhythms with these three sounds.

Why she says Gareth is like a baby: Babies copy the sounds of their mothers, so they learn how to speak. Gareth copied the sounds of the drum and so he has learned the language of the drums.
