Let's find out what „Über den Tellerrand“ wants to do and then explain the headline of the article.

„Über den Tellerrand“ started with the idea of publishing a book filled with the stories, photos and recipes of refugees. However, it soon became a larger project that organized community events such as cooking lessons, soccer teams or language tandems. The main aim of this project is to connect people who speak different languages, have different cultural backgrounds and come from different countries. Especially people who don't know any refugees yet, or might even be a bit afraid, get the chance to meet them personally in a relaxed and friendly atmosphere. So the cooking classes aren't only about food, but also about cultural exchange.

The cooking classes are a perfect way to connect people because they are about food, music and dance. People not only cook, but have a nice time together and get to know other people and culture. Since these cooking classes with refugees are connected to having a good time, the article has the title „Always cook on the bright side of life“. The idea is we shouldn't just criticize other people who are different, but should get to know them personally.

SB, S. 51, nr. 4

a) – safe and comfortable meeting place for refugees and Berliners

- cooking together helps to make a friendly atmosphere for refugees and Germans

- cultural nights with music and dance help people to connect

- organization of soccer teams and language tandems

- refugees and Berlin architects build a Kitchen Hub together

b) English is a key ingredient in the process because most refugees only speak English and Arabic.

So the Germans have to speak English to be able to communicate
